

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and method for conveniently tracking inventory and merchandise in a retail setting is disclosed. The system can track various items as they travel through the entire supply chain. The system includes provisions that provide accurate and real time information related to available inventory on retail floor space and in storage. The system can be used to automatically determine available inventory and the system can be used to assist customers and staff in locating particular items.

Patented 11/11/2009